ATAFOM UNIVERSITY INTERVIEW

#ATAFOMUNIVERSITY

BY MABAS AKILA

ATAFOM INTERVIEW WITH
MRS. JAMILA ABUBAKAR
HEAD OF THE ATAFOM LANGUAGE ACADEMY (ALA) AND
HEAD OF ATAFOM INFO OFFICE, NIGERIA

‘With ATAFOM University, my work ethics has changed’

Mrs. Jamila Abubakar
Head of the ATAFOM Language Academy (ALA), and
Head of ATAFOM Info Office, Nigeria

Mrs. Jamila Abubakar is the Head of the ATAFOM Language Academy (ALA) and resides in Nigeria. She is a very hardworking woman who, in this interview, describes how work ethics at ATAFOM differ from other jobs she has had in the past. Mrs. Abubakar also explains how the online platform provides opportunities for students and teachers from different cultures to interact regardless of the generally perceived barriers to online learning. Excerpts:

What experiences have you had as a lecturer working in the ATAFOM environment?

Regarding experience, I can say I have gathered a wealth of it. Since my first day of working with ATAFOM University, I consider every day a new day. This is because every day has its own new task and this makes it interesting. From the first day, I learned that the culture is to achieve something every day, meaning it is a work environment for committed people. One cannot survive in the environment without sharing in the university's vision and mission as well as demonstrating real hard work, commitment, meeting deadlines, and other high standard work ethics. This was how it started for me. Our culture here in Nigeria hardly emphasizes dedication to work like spending the whole day working on a project (not that we are not committed to the job). This happens but it is rarely common. So when I joined ATAFOM, that was the first battle I had. I noticed that for me to survive in the environment, I have to increase my commitment, and my dedication; I need to be more hard-working; I have to ensure that I meet deadlines and ensure that I reach a near-perfect output. The administration has helped a lot in this regard through encouragement.

Mrs. Jamila
Abubakar
Head ALA

We are also being told that nothing happens without mistakes but that should not be repeated. This consoles me a lot and despite the demands to be committed and dedicated, there is a very good human relationship between the administration and the staff and this makes things a lot easier regardless of the tasks. The way you are given the tasks and the way you are guided to accomplish the tasks gives you a kind of comfort and makes the work really easy.

How does this experience differ from your previous engagement?

In all my previous works, I can say that I have been a heroine. By heroine, I imply that I never had to learn something new. I have been a reading consultant for several schools and whenever I go there, I do not get fresh experiences – it is always me giving to the students and the school after my rigorous research of course. But with ATAFOM University, I see every day as a learning space; they open a door that seems totally new to me and to which I have to commit myself to understand it. As I have earlier said, the commitment and dedication are totally different from my previous work because here, you cannot survive if you are not committed to the job. But to me, I like it! It is making me a changed person and I believe whatever work I will encounter in the future; would not be difficult for me. I am used to meeting deadlines, and making sure I work to the best of my ability and

Can you describe the relationship between staff and students at the university?

The relationship between teachers and students in the university has been good. First thing is that the Motto of the university, 'Education for Integration' says it all. The main purpose is to ensure that students and teachers from various cultures and backgrounds; religions and denominations are brought together with the assurance of hospitality and equity in the education environment. This is one of the training given to us at ATAFOM as staff and it is the first thing we share with our students as well. We have students from different parts of the world, over 12 countries. Each of these students comes with a different religion, culture, background, and philosophy. So, we try to respect the differences in us and as teachers, when a student gets in, we respect where they come from and their cultures.

Mrs. Jamila
Abubakar
Head ALA

This makes them feel at home with us and that is the beginning of building a positive relationship between us. This has been the yearning of our president, Dr. Sakir Yavuz – that all students receive world-class education regardless of where they come from. As teachers, ours is to make the students understand that they are all equal and that we aim to make them better and our differences do not matter. Having established that, we build respect for each other and make the teaching and learning process highly interactive.

We have had a lot of feedback from the students. ATAFOM University ensures that there are several feedback platforms for that. WhatsApp chat is one of them and we give our students the leverage to communicate with us all day round and at all times regardless of the weekend. We use email as well as the ATAFOM Online Campus to communicate with our students. Google Drive is also a huge resource for communicating with our students in terms of accessing study materials, and we use it as our storage platform as well. Through these channels, we attend to students' needs on all sorts of issues and questions on the university, learning, and other life issues. There is a hugely positive relationship between teachers and students that touch on all aspects of their students' lives – educational and human.

When it comes to education, ATAFOM University staff present knowledge at the highest quality and standard. We make sure that our lessons take care of individual differences. This is because students are varied in terms of their abilities; some can learn very fast; others are average while there are others who are very slow learners. We make sure we handle all these categories of learning while planning and delivering our lessons. We make sure every student is learning at his/her own pace and with respect as well. Currently, we are able to handle students with disabilities.

What you are saying is that the online platform is not a barrier.

Yes, it is not a barrier. In fact, it is an opportunity. We have some of our students in different countries who might have lost hope of acquiring a university degree. For instance, a student with a disability might just remain without formal education or an indigent family might not have the financial capacity to sponsor their ward for the formal university education of international standard, or a worker who does not have the time for the inconveniences of a physical education system.

Mrs. Jamila
Abubakar
Head ALA

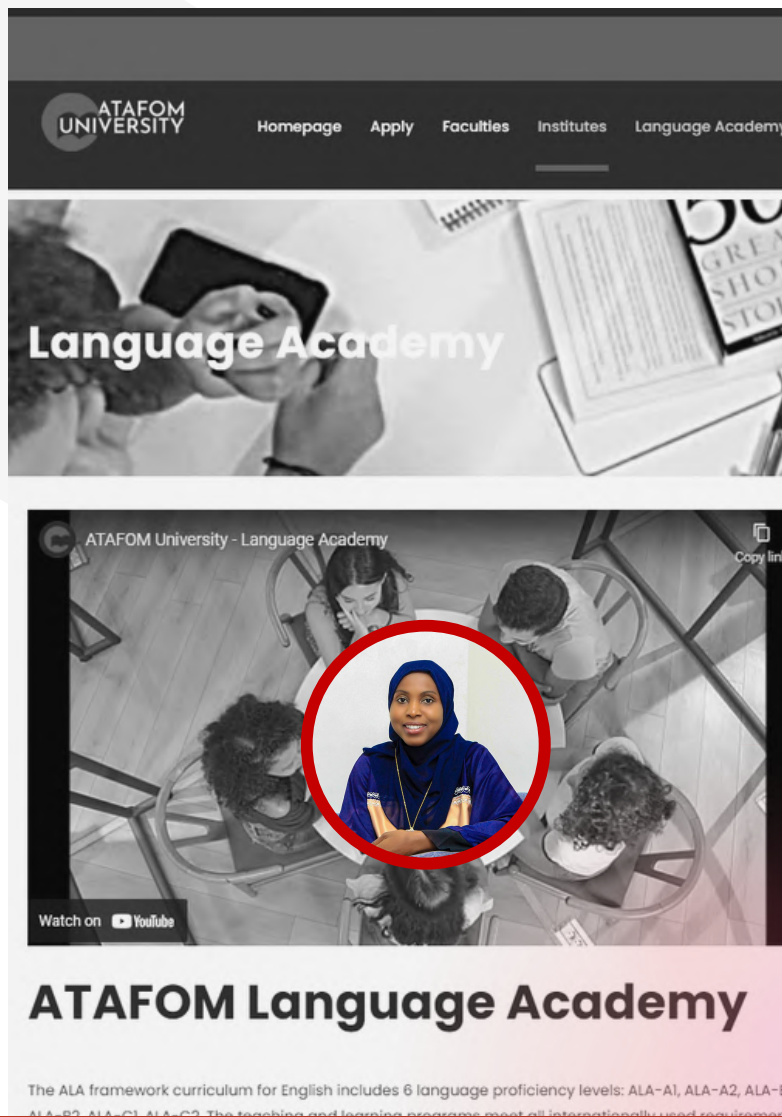

All those with these experiences now have the opportunity for formal university education with ATAFOM University where learning is taken into your bedroom. So, the online platform is not a barrier at all but an opportunity.

What opportunities for improvement do you see in working on the online campus and the Zoom application?

I know we cannot say everything is perfect yet. But at the level ATAFOM University is operating at, I can say we have attained something close to perfection. However, the only improvement I see will come from our experiences in handling the online campus and zoom application. As we keep documenting and reporting our challenges as teachers and students, we will improve the deficiencies of the usage of the application. The applications (ATAFOM Online Campus and the Zoom) are perfect and our usage of it has been quite smooth as well. Our experiences are evolving and will shape the future of how the online campus will be, just like any new technology.

With what arguments would you recommend ATAFOM University to any prospective student?

There are so many arguments actually. The way we operate is that we are giving people a chance to study. Of course, we know how Covid 19 has affected our approach and use of technology in the educational sector. However, even without Covid 19, there are other factors that hinder people from studying physically. Sometimes, one might be engaged and still wants to fulfill his/her educational needs without feeling hindered by their engagement or the inconveniences of a physical setting. This fellow can be recommended to ATAFOM University because we give him/her the chance and time to study at their own pace while still acquiring standard and quality education. With ATAFOM University, you achieve standard education despite your busy schedules.

The ALA framework curriculum for English includes 6 language proficiency levels: ALA-A1, ALA-A2, ALA-A3, ALA-B1, ALA-B2, ALA-C1, ALA-C2. The teaching and learning programs meet all internationally used requirements.

Where do you see the development prospects of ATAFOM University in the next few years?

The University will go very high because this is the first academic year and a whole lot has been achieved in terms of student enrolment, staff recruitment and courses offered. If we work at this pace, I am certain that our future will be far better than today.

How would you describe your students?

The students are enthusiastic about learning. From the environment I am coming from (Nigeria), the whole experience is new to them and they are excited and marveled at how learning can take place online. As they continue in it they are getting more excited because they see opportunities opening up for them. The students are also committed and are always on time for their classes. They constantly engage themselves in the tasks or assignments given. This makes the students active learners rather than passive.

Does your ATAFOM experience change your perception of online teaching?

Yes, it has. In the past, when I hear of online teaching, I never visualized it as I see at ATAFOM University. My experience in the Online Campus makes me see online teaching in very close comparison with face-to-face experience – with even more prospects. I also find ATAFOM University's online classes very unique. Other typical online classes I know will have the students only and download the study materials; they do not have these live classes where the teachers and the students will be interacting at the same time and sharing the screen with an unlimited time frame (usually equal to any face-to-face classes). This has changed my perception positively on the credibility and feasibility of online learning.

MRS. ABUBAKAR, HEAD ALA

As Head of ATAFOM Language Academy, kindly speak of the philosophy and usefulness of the Academy?

This is indeed the most useful question so far and it happens to be the last one. The ATAFOM Language Academy (ALA) is established to improve students' English language. As I earlier informed you, we have students from over 13 countries just in the first half of our pilot academic year. We will definitely expand to more countries in the coming academic year, probably to 30 countries and more. Those students will be coming with their different languages and ATAFOM University teaches in English language. If only students who speak English will come to the university, then our motto of 'Education for integration' will not be achieved because what we are up to is to break barriers. We cannot allow language to become a barrier for this noble goal. So the ATAFOM Language Academy is there to equip them with the English language skills and proficiency non-English speaking students require for their pursuit of a university degree.

We also give other English courses such as Business English and Academic English for those interested in learning the English Language. The English language is gradually becoming the world's number one lingua franca; it is being spoken by billions of people around the world and job opportunities become easier when you learn and speak English. So the ALA is part of the curriculum because most of our students are coming without a very good background in the English language. The academy starts with a placement test or examination once a student secures admission to ATAFOM University. The performance of the student will make us determine whether the student will commence their bachelor's classes immediately or will need remediation at the Language Academy. For those who need remediation, it means their performance shows that they are not proficient enough to understand and be examined in the English language. The categories of tests include A1, A2, B1, B2, C1, and C2.

Mrs. Jamila
Abubakar
Head ALA

The ATAFOM Language Academy has all the necessary credibility and standard since the academy is part of ATAFOM University. Our language proficiency certificate for Business English and others carries the name of ATAFOM University and is accepted everywhere in the world.

ATAFOM - My Better Future

#ATAFOMUNIVERSITY

BY MABAS AKILA

ATAFOM University International has been described as an institution that integrates into the very life of Africa and any other region it finds itself. It does this by identifying and addressing the challenge of skills training for people in the continent and other host communities.

Dean of the Faculty of Political Science and former Vice President of Zambia, Prof. Dr. Nevers S. Mumba has disclosed this in a recent interview where he observes that in the absence of skilled manpower, Africa will be a continent that does not move forward.

What makes this opportunity presented by ATAFOM University very exciting is that, unlike other universities, ATAFOM promises jobs to its students. "All the students we pick on the streets, we give a guarantee for work and jobs. We are the only university that is promising that. We have been working on that for some time now and we think we have a system that will not let any of our graduates get stranded on the streets. We are going to make sure that they are incorporated into work so that they can use the education that they have gotten at ATAFOM University."

The Dean of Political Science explains that his faculty and all the other faculties will be actively involved in this philosophy as he reveals what his faculty will achieve.

"First of all, I just want to repeat the fact that the goodness about the school of Political Science that will be starting soon (we are targeting the first Semester of 2023) is that it will be inclined to understanding and making researches on African politics. There are a lot of books written about American politics and governance but very little has been researched on how African politics operate. ATAFOM is going to offer political science that relates to who we are, the way we think, and the way our culture builds us because a foreign system imposed on Africa will never work. It has to be a system that is domesticated to who we are and what our values are", he adds.

"ATAFOM UNIVERSITY WILL FILL A DEARTH OF SKILLED MANPOWER FOR AFRICA AND OTHER REGIONS"

PROF. DR. NEVERS
SEKWILA MUMBA

The political leader also expressed his unwavering commitment to the project thus: "As the Dean of the School of Politics and Political Science, I am going to make sure that the programme answers the question of international development, public policy, public administration, and global governance; we shall handle economic theories, political communication, law, and public policy and international security. So, we shall offer several programmes in the school of political science and I am sure that this is going to be one of the most exciting schools at ATAFOM.

"Through our school of Political Science and as Dean, I will endeavor to download the understanding of African politics. I have been Vice President before, I am still in politics now, and I have run for President three times; so I do understand what really matters politically on the African continent and I think I would want to share that with young emerging political leaders. I would make sure that we come up with a curriculum that really dovetails itself into Africa, not to carry a western and eastern agenda – just Africa," he emphasizes.

Prof. Dr. Mumba also laments how other university systems and curricula do not address the needs of their students and holds that the philosophy of ATAFOM University is incongruent with this pattern of education.

"The success of every action begins in your head"

Sakir Yavuz,
President & Founder
ATAFOM University

"The philosophy is 'Education for Integration'. The word integration means that you get the education, you get knowledge and now you have to integrate it into your culture in your community so that it relates to where you are and interprets your own local challenges. You know, sometimes you go and get an education from someplace that does not connect with the needs that surround you in your own country. There are so many universities where they teach you all about England, European history or America because that is where they are coming from.

"ATAFOM wishes to address this matter; to help in domesticating the knowledge that we get so that it can serve us in our community and nations in terms of how we view life to ensure that we improve and grow our capacity to be able to handle the development that is coming to the African countries", Prof. Dr. Mumba reiterates.

According to him, there is robust IT support that facilitates this ideology since it is an online university. "We got a second-to-none IT backup that helps our students to get the very best out of online education. We got technical people that are able to work, not only with the staff but also with the students to ensure that they are not left behind in this technology. So we are ready to face the world and to offer the world the education that we want to offer the world."

In terms of how teachers and students are adapting to the online learning platform, the former Vice President has this to say: "I think it is a learning experience and a learning curve for all of us. Every day we are exposed to new things and how to do them better online. Remember, this hasn't been our (Africans) way of doing education all along, but it is becoming the best way to do it. So far, it has been teaching me that I have more to learn but also it is giving me the opportunity to reach so many people in a short time globally by using this process.

Although the university will be based in Bangui, Central African Republic, Prof. Dr. Mumba believes the benefit of ATAFOM University cuts across Africa and the globe entirely. He says, "I think that Africa will benefit a lot but this does not mean it is a university just for Africans. It is a university for every global citizen who wishes to become part of this great institution and we will deal with the histories of different parts of the world in interpreting our philosophy".

While encouraging African students to seize the opportunity to learn meaningful knowledge from ATAFOM University International, the Dean of Political Science envisages the school to be strategic to the African continent.

"I think that in the next five years, I see it as a go-to university, especially for African students. I would like to see ATAFOM become a very useful university to answer local questions. This means we are internationally interpreting education to answer questions of individual countries, especially African challenges such as conflicts", he concluded.
